

Australia ICOMOS Symposium, 12th November 2018, Hobart, Tasmania

Under the Microscope – Exploring Science Heritage

PROGRAMME

VENUE

The venue for the Under the Microscope – Exploring Science Heritage Symposium is the CSIRO Oceans & Atmosphere Auditorium, CSIRO, Castray Esplanade, Battery Point. The venue is located in Sullivans Cove beyond Salamanca Place. The CSIRO Oceans & Atmosphere Auditorium is accessed via the main entrance of the CSIRO buildings off Castray Esplanade.

PROGRAMME

Time	Session
9:00 am	Opening Session Symposium welcome - Anne McConnell (Symposium Coordinator) Housekeeping (CSIRO Staff) Welcome to Country Opening Remarks – Anne McConnell
9:20 am	Keynote Paper Dr Alice Gorman - The black swan of trespass: Technological heritage and Australian identity.
9:50 am	Session 1 Chair – Elspeth Wishart Defining & Recognising Science Heritage Gavan McCarthy - Find and Remember: Sixty years of tracking down Australia's scientific documentary heritage. Eric Colhoun & Kevin Kiernan - Does Scientific Knowledge Enhance the Heritage Value of the Environment? The Example of Tasmanian Pleistocene Glacial Landscapes. Keith Baker - Where Scientific and Engineering Heritage Intersect.
11:00	Morning Tea
11:25	Session 1 (continued) Chair – Elspeth Wishart Anne McConnell - Hidden in Plain Sight: The Unobtrusiveness of Science Heritage and its Implications.

11:45	Session 2 Chair – Gavan McCarthy Illustrating Science Heritage Martin George - Tasmania's Very Low Frequency Radio Astronomy Sites . Ken McInnes - Time, Tides and Flagstaffs (snapshot). Eddy de Jong - Dashing and dotting our way to the future – how electric telegraphy was one of the first disruptive technologies (snapshot). Paul Johnston - Waterworth Building, Hobart (snapshot).
12:30	Session 3 Chair – Gavan McCarthy Interrogating the Scientific Documentary Heritage Liz Daniels - Documenting the History of Scientific Societies in Van Diemen's Land and early Tasmania (10-15mins) Caitlin Vertigan & Richard Tuffin - Shoot, Catalogue, Eat
1:10	Lunch
2:00	Session 4 Chair – Alison Wain Experiences in Managing Science Heritage Ailie Smith - Records of the Fellows and the archives of the Australian Academy of Science . Elspeth Wishart - Ensuring Antarctic science heritage collections are here for the future . Mark Fountain & Natalie Tapson - Managing Science Heritage at the Royal Tasmanian Botanical Garden . Ken McInnes - Engineering Heritage and Science Heritage – Can the lessons learnt from one apply to the other?
3:25	Afternoon Tea
3:50	Session 4 continued Chair – Alice Gorman Experiences in Managing Science Heritage Alison Wain - Molonglo Radio Telescope: A Heritage and Education Partnership .
4:15	Session 5 Co-Chairs – Alice Gorman and Anne McConnell Science Heritage and the Next 5 Years?) (1:00 hr) Symposium participant discussion
Close 5:15	Close & Thank you – Anne McConnell (5 mins)

Symposium registration includes morning tea, lunch and afternoon tea.

FIELD EXCURSION PROGRAMME (SUNDAY 11TH NOVEMBER 2018)

Please refer to the separate Field Excursion Programme.

ABOUT AUSTRALIA ICOMOS

Australia ICOMOS (International Council on Monuments and Sites) is a non-government, not-for-profit organisation of cultural heritage professionals, which formed as a national committee of ICOMOS in 1976. Australia ICOMOS' mission is to lead cultural heritage conservation in Australia by raising standards, encouraging debate and generating innovative ideas. Australia ICOMOS has an Australia-wide membership base and encourages heritage professionals and others with an interest in the conservation of cultural heritage to join. More information is available at <https://australia.icomos.org/>.