

Heritage Consultant (Mid to Senior Level) - Sydney

ERM is seeking an experienced Mid-Level to Senior Heritage Consultant to join our growing team in Sydney on a permanent contract basis. ERM's National Heritage Team is comprised of highly-regarded archaeologists, anthropologists, heritage architects, interpretive specialists, and historians, working across all regions of Australia.

The position offers an excellent opportunity to be part of an industry-leading multi-disciplinary consultancy, and develop technical and professional skills in a supportive team environment, with access to an engaged international technical specialist community. The role will involve working as part of a team in the preparation of cultural heritage assessments, undertaking field survey, research, report writing and project management. This is an excellent opportunity for a professional looking to advance their career with a global environmental leader. We are seeking an enthusiastic, flexible and collaborative candidate who wish to see their work contribute real value towards environmental and heritage sustainability.

Role Responsibilities:

- Undertake/lead cultural heritage survey and assessment, primarily in NSW and on an as-needed basis in other States and Territories;
- Project manage multiple projects to budget within client's expectations and ensure quality standards on project deliverables;
- Undertake Aboriginal stakeholder consultation;
- Scope/cost projects and work with multi-disciplinary teams to develop strategic approaches to deliver best project outcomes;
- Develop and maintain relationships with key clients to support repeat business;
- Build strong collaborative relationships with other ERM disciplines.

If you have the following, we want to hear from you:

- Tertiary degree in archaeology, anthropology, history, Aboriginal studies, or a similar discipline, or post-graduate qualifications in museum/heritage management studies, or similar (Honours or equivalent);
- 4-7 years' experience ideally gained from within a consulting environment;
- Demonstrated knowledge of Aboriginal and historic heritage management environment, including experience in field investigations and recording, research, impact assessment and the NSW heritage statutory approvals process;
- Demonstrated experience with client liaison and in successfully managing complex projects;
- Excellent writing and communications skills;
- Ability to manage time and priorities independently and efficiently, and assist the rest of the team in meeting project objectives and deadlines;
- Being able and prepared to undertake field work and have the ability to work in remote locations;
- A current valid Australian driver's licence;
- Knowledge of WHS obligations and responsibilities relevant to the role; and
- Authorisation to work in Australia

At ERM, we believe that our only asset is our people and we strive to provide a working environment and benefits that both attract and retain top talent. We offer a competitive package, flexible working options and a strong team atmosphere and a professional and collaborative culture.

Who We Are:

As the world's leading sustainability consulting firm, ERM is uniquely positioned to contribute to the environment and society through the expertise and energy of our employees worldwide. Sustainability is what we do, and is at the heart of both our service offerings and how we operate our business. ERM and our partners are driven by a dynamic vision: By 2021 we will be the clear leader in our chosen markets, we will double in value and we will deliver on our promises to our clients, our people and our investors. For our people, our vision means attracting, inspiring, developing and rewarding our people to work with the best clients and on the biggest challenges, thus creating valuable careers. We achieve our vision in a sustainable manner by maintaining and living our ERM values that include Accountability, Caring for our People, Client Focus, Collaboration, Empowerment, and Transparency.

ERM is proud to be an Equal Employment Opportunity employer. We do not discriminate based upon race, religion, colour, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, gender identity, age, marital status or disability status.

Please apply through our ERM Careers page www.erm.com/careers.

Thank you for your interest in ERM!