

The Alfred Deakin Institute warmly invites you to a World Monuments Watch public lecture, Values and Vistas: Heritage, Memory and Preservation, by Lisa Ackerman

Wednesday 30 November 3.30 - 5.00 PM

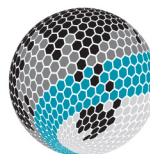

Lisa Ackerman is Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer at World Monuments Fund (WMF). She is also visiting Assistant Professor at the Pratt Institute, New York.

She will speak on the challenges of heritage preservation in the face of global developments, focussing on the activities of the World Monuments Watch, a WMF flagship program that calls to attention the plight of cultural heritage venues around the world that are threatened by neglect, vandalism, conflict, and natural disasters. Lisa will highlight some of the programs taking place in countries such as Albania, the United States, Italy and Cuba. She will illustrate that the common thread is not materials or style, but rather the importance of places to the communities, and what they can communicate about the past and present. Lisa's expertise and international experience in cultural heritage preservation will provide insightful information about the exploration of our collective desire to save the past and inform the future.

Venue: Melbourne Corporate Centre
Level 3, 550, Bourke Street,
Melbourne, Victoria 3000.

RSVP: By 25 November 2016
