Prince's Foundation Summer School 2019

Applications are open for the 2019 Prince's Foundation Summer School! Running for three weeks from the 15th of July to the 2nd of August in both Shoreditch, London's creative quarter, and the spectacular 18th century stately home, the Dumfries House Estate in Ayrshire, Scotland. The Summer School enables participants to develop their knowledge of traditional architecture, design, building and repair techniques and how these can be applied in the 21st Century.

This year, the Prince's Foundation is offering two bursaries for Australian students or apprentices who can demonstrate a strong interest in traditional architecture, trades, building, design or urbanism. Applications will be assessed by The Prince's Foundation in association with Prince's Trust Australia and INTBAU Australia.

Each bursary will cover the cost of tuition, materials, and accommodation within the three week programme. Some meals within the first week are provided and all meals within weeks two and three are included. Travel costs to and from London are not included.

Students at the popular summer school will learn a wide range of skills from expert tutors including

- Technical drawing
- Life drawing
- Geometry and structure exercises
- Stonemasonry
- Carpentry and timber framing
- Plastering
- Thatching
- Design and build
- Public consultation
