

Professional Development Workshop WESTERN BUILDING CONSTRUCTION: ROOFS

By INGRID VAN BREMEN

The National Trust with support of Australia ICOMOS is presenting a master class which will show how an understanding of the evolution of building construction informs the conservation of significant roofs; from the assessment of significance to the development of appropriate repairs and maintenance schedules.

This master class consists of a three hour session involving a formal presentation of the subject based on the book: Western Building Construction. Roofs and a workshop style case study of the former Astronomer's Residence (Old Observatory, West Perth) involving examination of documents and a visual inspection of the building itself.

Presented by Dr Ingrid van Bremen, author of the book, Honorary Research Fellow and lecturer in Conservation at UWA's Faculty of Architecture, Landscape and Visual Arts, and consultant architect in conservation; this workshop is for National Trust and ICOMOS members, and all those interested in the conservation of significant buildings in Western Australia, and the care and repair of roofs in particular.
